B. Medical Case Management

This approach helps to plan and coordinate medical services, including assessments and evaluations and guidance in developing, implementing and coordinating a medical care plan with physicians, therapists, and other health-related service providers.

Children's Specialized Hospital acknowledges that emotional, social, and developmental supports are integral components of healthcare. They respect each child and family's innate strengths and view the healthcare experience as an opportunity to build on these strengths and support families in their caregiving and decision-making roles. Patient-and-Family Centered approaches lead to better health outcomes and wiser allocation of resources as well as greater patient and family satisfaction.

In placing the needs of the child and family at the center of all activities, Children's Specialized Hospital embodies the values of Patient-and-Family Centered Care and Children's Specialized Hospital by:

- Respecting each child and his or her family as partners in care
- Honoring diversity and its effect on the family's experience and perception of care through recognizing that each family is unique in their structure, values, culture, ethnic orientation, spiritual beliefs, social-economics, educational, and geographic diversity

- Building on the strengths of each child and family, even in difficult and challenging situations, by acknowledging each family's priorities and levels of expertise, recognizing and respecting different methods of coping, and implementing comprehensive services that provide developmental, educational, emotional, environmental, and financial supports
- Supporting and facilitating choice for the child and family about approaches to care and support
- Ensuring flexibility in organizational policies, procedures, and provider practices to reflect diversity and meet the needs, beliefs, personalities, life experiences, spiritual and cultural values of each child and family
- Providing formal and informal support for each child and family
- Collaborating with families at all levels of healthcare, in the care of the individual child and in professional education, policy making, and program development, through the exchange of honest and unbiased information on an ongoing basis and in ways that are useful and affirming
- Empowering children and families to discover their own strengths, build confidence, and make choices and decisions about their health through the creation of true partnerships with healthcare professionals
- Working with local communities, schools, and health officials to ensure that community services and support systems for children and their families are flexible, accessible, and comprehensive.
